

REWARDROBE – London's first slow wear consultancy

Published: 23/09/2009

» Clothing & Fashion

REWARDROBE is the new slow wear consultancy that offers solutions for an aware wardrobe management. The mission is to give wardrobes new space and functionality, and to work with clients to define their personal image, according to their lifestyle and personality.

The brainchild of Veronica Crespi, a fashion insider with impeccable Italian taste and an all-round knowledge of the British fashion market.

For practical wardrobe organisation, REWARDROBE have researched the best natural products now available on the market. This includes hangers, storage boxes, lavender sachets, shoe-trees, moth repellents, and a myriad of other useful goods that help prolong a wardrobe's life.

The approach is towards responsible style. They have devised a rewarding Upcycle scheme to give a new life to clothes that aren't being used to their full potential. Donate, Sell, Upcycle: many items can be passed on to charity organisations.

For the perfect wardrobe Update, a personalised shopping option, part of which consists in an introduction to the emerging world of ethical brands, which can now offer a plethora of amazing choices for all occasion, and are absolutely spot-on when it comes to style and seasonal trends.

Once the wardrobe has been edited, the Re-Styling session takes place. It offers a fresh look at the client's garments, shoes and accessories, to create the best colour and shape combinations, and a list of outfits for

Photo Gallery

